

Learning Support

Students with mild learning needs will find a caring, individualized approach and support structure that helps them access the AAAS curriculum. Learning support is a broadly-based program, offering support to regular classroom teachers, students, and parents. All students are registered in regular classes and those in need of support will have that from their teacher through differentiated activities and teaching styles that best suits their learning style. AAAS also has a special program for People of Determination (POD) that falls under the MOE. This is led by the POD teacher and assistant, under the supervision of the Principal and Vice Principal. Students with moderate to severe learning difficulties will have some of their lessons in the POD room with the POD teacher and assistant. Parents of POD students will also have the full support of the POD Learning Support Team.
